

TRAGIC CRASH OF PLANE CARRYING POLISH FLIERS ENDS ATTEMPTED TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT, COSTING LIFE OF MAJOR LUDWIK IDZIKOWSKI, AND INJURING COMPANION

DEVELOPMENT OF MOTOR TROUBLE FORCED LANDING

Body of The Marshal Lies Short Distance from Where Tragedy Occurred

KUBALA IS IN HOSPITAL

Battered Wreckage, Proving Death Trap, on Smallest Island of Azores

HORTA, Azores, July 15.—(INS)—

Full details of the tragic crash which cost the life of Major Ludwik Idzikowski, premier Polish flier, and seriously injured Major Kasimir Kubala, his companion on an attempted trans-Atlantic flight, were being awaited today from the little island of Graciosa, where the venture which started so brilliantly from France a few hours earlier, ended in disaster Saturday night.

The body of Major Idzikowski lies beneath a little mound of earth not far from the spot where his plane, the Marshal Pilsudski, crashed while attempting a forced landing due to motor trouble.

His erstwhile companion is in a serious condition at a local hospital. The gravity of his state has made it impossible for the full story of the disaster yet to be told.

Major Idzikowski's remains, removed from the battered wreckage of the plane which had proved his death trap, were buried with simple honors on Graciosa, one of the smallest islands in the Azores group. Mangled and torn by the impact of the crash and the explosion of gasoline which immediately followed it, the famous aviator's body was placed in a casket less than twenty-four hours after the accident had occurred, and lowered into its grave.

Only the comparatively few residents of the island witnessed the interment, performed with simple rites. One day the adventurous flier was speeding over the ocean expanses on a flight aimed not merely at fame and glory, but at the welding of relations between two nations, and the next he lay beneath the soil of a tiny island even whose name was virtually unknown to the rest of the world.

From the story pieced together by eye-witnesses of the crash and the wireless messages received from the Marshal Pilsudski for some time preceding the accident, it appears Idzikowski and Kubala encountered trouble some twelve or fourteen hours after they hopped off from Le Bourget flying field, near Paris, as contestants in the first trans-Atlantic air race in history.

They preceded by some forty minutes Captain Dieudonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte, their French rivals. Both crews hoped to reach New York and thus accomplish the first successful east to west crossing of the ocean from starting point to pre-determined goal.

But both met the terrific headwinds which have spelled death and destruction to so many trans-Atlantic aspirants. Costes and Bellonte turned back and avoided disaster. Idzikowski and Kubala kept on, fighting desperately, hopelessly against the winds, until finally, when in the vicinity of the Azores they came to the realization their only hope lay in a safe landing on firm ground.

Sinister messages sputtered from their radio. Telling of engine trouble and of the necessity of landing, and the football field here, the only thing approaching a landing ground, was prepared for their arrival.

There was little fear that they would fail to reach their goal in spite of their trouble, but suddenly the wireless messages ceased. Still no apprehension was felt among the gay crowds who had gathered to watch what was to have been the first descent of a land plane on this rocky island when like a bolt from the blue came word that the Marshal Pilsudski had crashed in landing at Graciosa, and that Idzikowski had met his death.

PLANE WHICH CRASHED WITH POLISH FLIERS

COUNTY BANKERS WILL MAKE TOUR OF FARMS

August 5th is Date Set for Inspection of Lower Bucks County Farms

WILL LUNCH IN BRISTOL

The Bucks County Bankers' Association has planned its second annual farm tour. This tour is to be held on Monday, August 5th.

The trip will take the bankers through the lower end of Bucks county. The tentative program will be to meet at Newtown at 10 a. m.; visit the poultry farm of Taylor Brothers at Newtown; next stop at the farm of J. O. Canby & Son, Hulmeville, to view their herd of Holstein cattle. Lunch will be served at the Elks' Hall in Bristol through the courtesy of the banks of Bristol. The speaker of the day will be R. G. Bressler, deputy secretary of Agriculture of Pennsylvania.

The first stop after lunch will be at the farm of Thomas Patterson, Morrisville, to see potatoes, tomatoes, asparagus, and corn. The last stop will be the John C. McCormick duck farm at Yardley, where there will be 30,000 ducklings at that time.

It is hoped that all bank directors and officers of the Bucks county banks will participate in this tour on August 5th.

Charity Card Party Is Planned for Friday Night

A large card party will be held in Hibernian Hall, Corson street, Friday evening, for the benefit of a worthy charity. Pinochle and "500" will be played and table assignments will be made at 8.30 sharp.

The committee in charge of the party has made every effort to make this party a great success and has collected numerous and valuable prizes to give to those receiving high scores. Some of them are, boudoir lamp, toilet seat, four Lanark rugs, size 3 x 3, waterless cooker, and table, carving set, silver bread tray, magazine rack, cocoa set, silk stockings, Boston bag, beads, bed-room slippers and many other useful things.

It is hoped that everyone who enjoys playing cards, will make an effort to attend this party and help the cause along.

CHRISTENED

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCole, of Bath street, was christened in St. Mark's Church on Sunday. The baby was named "Claire" and the sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Edward McIlvaine, of Jefferson avenue.

SCOUTS PLAN ROAST

Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts of Bristol, will journey to Harriman Beach, tomorrow evening, where they will enjoy a swim, marshmallow roast and a "doggie" roast. All members are asked to be present if they are looking for a good time. Scouts are asked to take their bathing suits and hot "dogs."

BUCKS COUNTY TROOPS ENCAMPED AT MT. GRETTA

First Time Since Mexican Border Encampment Entire Division Has Been Together

DOYLESTOWN, July 15.—For the first time since the World War and the encampment on the Mexican border, the entire Twenty-eighth Division, better known as the Keystone Division, is together at the Mt. Gretna annual National Guard encampment this year.

Saturday morning at 9.15 a troop train pulled out of the local station of the Reading Railroad with members of Bucks county's Company D aboard, a crack machine gun unit commanded by Captain Daniel D. Atkinson, the veteran "two-lar" officer of the Mt. Gretna camp.

At Norristown the train picked up Company K. At Phoenixville Company L entrained and at Pottstown Company A joined the others.

The Doylestown guardsmen, together with other members of the Keystone Division, will be in camp for a fifteen-day tour of duty and intensive training.

There are sixty-seven men and three officers on the Company D roster. Since 1920 the local company, once known as Company G when it was an infantry unit, have been going to camp. There are a number of new members in the company this year. In fact very few, with the exception of the officers, saw service in the World War.

Camp Thompson is the official name of the camp this year. Today the entire division, including the Doylestown company, will leave Camp Thompson with full field equipment and fighting regalia to spend four days in the field, as a fighting division in enemy territory.

The advance detail of Company D left early last week for Camp Thompson with the field equipment.

LAWN FETE COMES TO A CLOSE; WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Four Nights of Activity Attracted Eager Crowd To Harriman Building

AUTOS WERE EXHIBITED

Winners of Children's Show Are Announced Today

The Harriman Hospital lawn fete came to a close Saturday night and was an outstanding success. Every one of the four nights that the affair was given the hospital lawn was crowded with an eager crowd of spectators which milled about the premises enjoying the amusements provided.

Automobile dealers exhibited their cars, an orchestra played and numerous other attractions kept the crowd in a good humor.

One of the features was a children's fashion show conducted by Smith's Model Shop of Bristol. Two nights the children garbed in the very latest styles were the center of attraction.

Friday night 19 children participated and on Saturday evening 20 took part. The winners are announced as follows:

First, Marie Marcel.
Second, Geraldine Fenton.
Third, Delores Pieters.

The exhibition given by Madame Ada Schorsch, Langhorne, was voted wonderful by those who witnessed it. She entertained with 100 tricks of sleight of hand and had an orchestra of 24 children who rendered excellent selections. The audience was captivated by the performance of the children.

Those from Bristol in Madame Schorsch's orchestra were as follows: Regina McDonald, Colleen Moorhead, Marie Marcel, Helen Gallagher, Marie Specziano, Genevieve Risser, Emma Specziano, Marie Gallagher, Winifred Kelley, Rita Duffy, Esther Turner, Theresa Duffy, Geraldine Fenton, Santina Chilleri, Lena Larose, Pauline Greco, Gloria Greco, Elma Kershaw, Dolores Pieters.

Lad Reunited With Father; Separated While Visiting

HULMEVILLE, July 15.—Crying with delight when he became separated from his father a Philadelphia lad of about nine years, was taken care of for a short time by Hulmeville residents yesterday.

The boy, whose name was not learned by those who helped him, had made a trip to Newport Terrace with his father, and wandered to a small woods near a club house that was once the edifice of the old Neshamony Church. Seeing the lad running back and forth in the thicket members of the club made their way to him, and between sobs the youngster told of his plight. He was not certain just where his relative had stopped for the visit.

A constable was notified, but in a short time the youth's father reached a local store where the boy had been taken and a happy reunion followed.

LADIES' AID TO MEET

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Harriman M. E. Church will meet tomorrow evening at the church at eight o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

MOTOR TO HANOVER

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holland, of Buckley street, motored to Hanover on Sunday and visited Mr. and Mrs. Anthony.

Messrs. John and James Garr and Miss Mae Garr, of Tennis avenue, motored to Beaver on Monday to spend a few days with their sister, Mrs. R. B. Wisner. They also contemplate visiting their uncle in Akron, Ohio.

Reinstated in Favor

In November, 1927, following publication of articles by Rear-Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, above, in which he criticized the handling of naval affairs by the department, the officer was relieved of his duties as commandant of the Navy Yard at Philadelphia. Magruder has been recalled for duty and is ordered to report August 1 as commander of the fleet base force on the Pacific coast.

MISS LAPOLLA IS BRIDE OF THOMAS COMMARE

Ceremony Performed at St. Ann's Church Yesterday; Many in Attendance

BIG RECEPTION IS HELD

A beautiful and interesting wedding occurred yesterday afternoon in St. Ann's Church, Dorrance and Pond streets, at 2 o'clock, when Miss Mary V. LaPolla, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas LaPolla, of 207 Wood street, became the bride of Thomas Commare, son of Joseph Commare, of 25 Lincoln avenue, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Rev. Isidore Jenne, rector of the church, officiated at the wedding and the bride and groom were given in marriage by their respective fathers.

Miss LaPolla was attended by Miss Mary Tamburello, of 408 Dorrance street, as maid of honor and the Misses Julia LaPolla, sister of the bride; Veronica Dunn, of Trenton; Frances Tamburello, of 408 Dorrance street, and Sara Callella, of Beaver Dam Road, as bridesmaids. Serving Mr. Commare as best man was Peter Mofl, of Elizabeth, N. J., and the ushers were Messrs. Nicholas Boscarelli, of Trenton; Luciano Zanni, of Cherry street; and Joseph LaPolla, brother of the bride. The train-bearers were Grace Caro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Caro, of 319 Lincoln avenue and Gloria Cestone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cestone, of Philadelphia. The ring bearer was Louis Sinurella, son of Mrs. B. Lentini, of Red Bank, N. J. Mrs. Chester Beaton, of Dorrance and Pond streets, presided at the organ and before the ceremony, the following selections were rendered: "At Dawning," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Perfect Day." Lohengrin's wedding march was played as the wedding party entered the church and Wagner's wedding march was rendered as the bride departed from the church. Miss Philomena Swartz, of Bath Road, sang "Mother At Thy Feet I'm Kneeling," during the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a frock of white satin faced crepe, the waist of which was basque effect trimmed with rhinestone, made with "V" neck and sleeveless. The skirt was bouffant style with two tiers of tulle and a bow of white satin at the waistline. She wore white kid slippers with small bouquets of orange blossoms on the sides and white silk chifon stockings. Her veil of tulle, which was four yards in length and edged with rose point lace, was cap shaped, arranged in Spanish effect at the back, and was trimmed with rhinestones, pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white rose buds and lilies of the valley. Around her neck she wore a beautiful string of Deltah pearls.

SMALL VICTIM OF FLAMES WILL BE BURIED TODAY

Edward J. Mossbrook, 4, of Croydon, Met Painful Death

PLAYED WITH MATCHES

Clothing Had Been Burned From Body When Aid Reached Youth

CROYDON, July 15.—Funeral services will be held this afternoon at two o'clock for little Edward J. Mossbrook, 4, of Pennsylvania avenue, who was so severely burned Friday night that he died later in the hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner, Bristol.

Edward was alone at home at the time of the accident which up to this time it is impossible for his parents to explain the manner in which it happened.

The child was playing alone at the rear of the yard. The plot of ground on which the Mossbrook home is situated is 160 feet deep and the youngster was at the rear quite a distance from the house.

Edward along with other children of the neighborhood are fond of playing, "Indians" and they frequently gather in the neighborhood and have "Indian Camps". They shout and call as in their imaginations they think real Indians do.

Friday afternoon Mrs. May Griffen-berg, a neighbor of the Mossbrooks, heard Edward calling and hollering but thought nothing of it until he gave three shouts which sounded to her rather unusual. At about the same instant William Ferrier, 17, who was cutting grass in the adjoining yard, also had his attention attracted to the youngster. They found him burned severely. All of his clothing had been consumed by the flames with the exception of his sneakers and the collar of his overalls.

The suffering tot was placed in an automobile and rushed to the hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner at Bristol where first aid was administered. The little fellow was severely burned about the face, hands, limbs and back. He died shortly after five o'clock.

As near as can be learned Edward was playing in a sand pile when in some manner his clothing caught fire. It is believed that he had found a match or matches and ignited his clothing. There were no evidences of a fire at the spot where he was found. The Rev. George Shoe, pastor of the Croydon M. E. Church, will officiate at the funeral. Four little playmates of the deceased will act as pallbearers. They will be Edward Curry, Joseph Crawford, Richard Barlow and William Mutch, Jr.

Burial will be in the Bristol cemetery under the direction of the H. S. Rue Estate, undertakers, of Bristol.

EDGELEY RESIDENTS ARE WELL SERVED BY COURIER STAFF

Serving Edgeley folks day after day and month after month by gathering news and then distributing it in printed form through the medium of the Courier, are Mrs. George Garretson, correspondent from that section, and Herman Michel, carrier for the town.

The finding of news items, personal in their application, is the duty assigned to Mrs. Garretson, and numerous visits are paid by her to the many homes in the Edgeley section. Hearing of a trip about to be engaged in by one of her townfolks the correspondent immediately ascertains as to the correctness of the news, then places it in a form that will attract attention under the heading of "Edgeley."

The Edgeley column is eagerly scanned each day by Edgeleyites, who in this manner learn about the activities of their friends and neighbors, are told of events that are to take place soon, and learn of the result of entertainments, sales and miscellaneous items.

Several days a week, through the efforts of the Edgeley newsgatherer, does news from that locality appear in the columns of the Courier, and each Saturday the church services are told in detail.

The work of taking the finished product, containing the news to Edgeley folks, is done by Herman Michel, of Radcliffe street, Edgeley. This energetic carrier has been serving his customers for years, making his rounds each afternoon as soon as the parcel of papers reaches the village.

Edgeley folks will help the newsgatherer by getting in touch with her when they have items to be published, and Herman will be glad each evening to make a trip to any home which he does not at present visit.

TRAINED PARENTS

It is with no little surprise that this generation hears that the widespread study of the child and of intelligent parenthood had an impetus on the very eve of the '90's, for one does not usually associate with the women's clubs of that time so practical an interest. The Fort-nightly, Shakespeare, Kipling and Browning Clubs of the last decade of the nineteenth century suggest a more academic culture.

Teachers, even in the '90's, were required to take courses in child study and found them helpful in managing their classes. Nevertheless, it seemed unnecessary in those days that parents should have scientific learning. Many felt that the parental instinct was all that was needed and, after all, mothers could best serve their children by staying home with them.

Today child training is a science. There are many opportunities for child study under trained direction, and more and more parents are seeing the wisdom of depending upon knowledge rather than upon instinct in rearing children.

The children of "trained parents" are said to be more self-reliant, better able to make their own decisions than those of the untrained. They are said to have enterprise and initiative and to be working better toward the limit of their capacity; to be sounder in body and limb because their health has been carefully watched; to be more tolerant and courteous and unafraid. To make them so has at least been the object of their parents.

TEACHING COPS

In these days of organized, big business crime there is no less need for uniformity in police methods than there is for uniformity in the criminal code. For several years judicial, legal and civilian organizations have been working toward the latter end. More recently in a few states there has been a move to bring about uniformity in police procedure.

This move amounts to an attempt to make country constables and the police of towns and small cities as well schooled in their profession as big city police. The state-wide police training plan bids fair to make the joke-book constable a forgotten institution.

The two chief purposes of the undertaking are to give every policeman a sound training in fundamentals comparable to the instruction given metropolitan police and to develop among the various communities the cooperative action made necessary by fast transportation and modern criminal tactics.

Theoretically, the plan promises to assist materially in the prosecution of society's war against the underworld. Ultimately, there seems to be no reason why a program of uniform police training should not be extended to a national basis.

One immediate result, which would be most welcome, would be the development of a uniform method of traffic control.

London newspapers made a great to-do about the fact that an English lord swallowed a collar button. Not so remarkable. Some English lords who have visited America bound on matrimony have even been known to swallow camels.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

ITEMS OF INTEREST AS CLIPPED FROM NEWSPAPER FILES

According to the files of the Doylestown Intelligencer Michael Doyle, aged 57 years, Philadelphia, met death when struck by a train while attempting to cross the tracks at Penn Valley. Mr. Doyle, who was a resident of Philadelphia, was employed as a laborer on the farm of A. Jackson Nelson, Penn Valley and following the day's work left for a short walk. Mr. Doyle was deaf and it was believed he did not hear the approaching train.

Farmers in the vicinity of Langhorne a half century ago found the prices of their products quite low and were reminded of the time a few years previous to the Civil War, when they received only eight and ten cents a pound for butter.

During a thunderstorm which swept the entire county a bolt of lightning struck the mill at Halmerville. The bolt followed the draught of air through one of the rooms and threw a number of the employes into a panic. The same storm created much havoc in the Plumstead section a bolt having struck the barn of Joseph L. Wismer. The structure was set on fire but several members of the family soon had the flames extinguished. The houses of Casper Hinkle and Isaiah Swope, Hinkletown, Plumstead township, were also struck but the damage amounted to little.

An event long to be remembered took place in Doylestown, where the four bells at St. Mary's Catholic Church were dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. The largest bell which weighed 1500 pounds was inscribed to the memory of the late John Farren and was presented by his wife. Another weighing 800 pounds was presented by Rev. Henry Stommel, his aunt and his sister. The third bell which weighed 300 pounds was presented by the congregation, while the fourth, weighing 200 pounds, was presented by Rev. E. McDermott, William Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. James Kane, James Biglan, John Kern, Rosanna Frederick, John Donnelly and Henry Gal-lon.

Reporting at a meeting of Doylestown Borough Council the committee appointed to select a place for housing the fire engine and hose announced that it was making progress. Council was also considering curbing some of the streets. The committee reported that bids for the stones for the curbing had been received from Carversville, Monroe county, Nockamixon and Point Pleasant, together with several other bids from Philadelphia firms. The committee was instructed to use its judgment in the selection of the stones.

General William J. Bolton, Norristown, who was to have been chief marshal at the dedicatory ceremonies at Valley Forge selected among his aids Col. Thomas P. Miller, Doylestown, and Major R. N. Boyd, Solebury.

Edward Foulke, who was employed in the main office of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Philadelphia, and who was well known in New Hope, was appointed to a responsible position in the Harrisburg depot and was making preparations for moving to that city.

Announcement was made that the salaries of the teachers of Newtown township had been reduced from $35 to $30 per month.

"Echoes of the Past" is the title of a column published every Monday in the Courier. This column deals with the happenings of 35 and 50 years ago, recalling many things of interest to aged residents of this section.

THE DESERT SONG By VIRGINIA MORRIS

"THE DESERT SONG" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the story by Otto Harbach, Laurence Schwab, Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and Frank Mandel.

SYNOPSIS

Margot Bonvalet is engaged to marry Captain Paul Fontaine who is about to set out from the French garrison at Fes to find the hiding place of the Rifis, an outlaw band led by a mysterious masked stranger who calls himself the Red Shadow. No one has the remotest suspicion that the Red Shadow is actually Pierre Birabeau, son of General Birabeau, the garrison's commanding officer. Everyone believes Pierre a spineless molly-coddle, even Margot, who scorns his timid declarations of love. Margot longs for wild story book romance, but finally consents to hasten her marriage to Captain Fontaine even though he is a better soldier than a lover. Azuri, a native girl, also loves Fontaine and threatens revenge if he marries Margot. She alone knows the identity of the Red Shadow.

CHAPTER IV

Margot Bonvalet was alone. It was late afternoon and she had just given Paul Fontaine her answer. General Birabeau would marry them that night. She was allowing herself a few last moments of meditation. Leaning against a tremendous mosaic archway, she stood on the balcony and gazed at the vast desert. It awoke in her heart an infinite longing, the ache for an indescribable something that would never be fulfilled. This was not the wedding day of which she had dreamed.

Her reverie was broken as a man's figure vaulted the railing behind her. She gave a startled cry, for the stranger was clad in a burnoose of flaming scarlet and his face was hidden behind a protecting mask.

"Oh, you're the Red Shadow!" she managed to exclaim when she had recovered her breath and had steadied herself against a chair.

He bowed gallantly. "A votre service, Mademoiselle."

Margot assumed a dignity that she did not feel. "How dare you come here?" she demanded.

"I heard you call for romance," her visitor explained. "I too, long for romance and I would dare anything to get what I want. But what would you dare, that's what I came to find out."

The girl ignored the question which the Red Shadow had asked with gusto.

"Do you realize that one scream from me would wipe out the Red Shadow?" she asked him.

The mysterious stranger shrugged his shoulders. "You wouldn't call for romance in one breath and toss it away in the next."

The ardor of his voice grew as he leaned toward her. "Will you come with me?" he begged. "If you come, I promise not to tell you, but you will stay."

Margot had been clutching her riding crop to give her confidence.

Now she raised it quickly. With it she struck the man before her straight across his face. He buried his head in his arm to alleviate the pain and reeled against the balcony rail.

But the girl's indignation quickly cooled. She was alarmed at what she had done. "Oh, oh, I've blinded you!" she cried, running over to him. But the Red Shadow had by now recovered himself.

"No, Margot, you haven't blinded me, you've just opened my eyes."

came in a little later. "What did he look like?" he asked.

"He was all dressed in red, Pierre. His complexion is no darker than yours. He was masked, but his eyes seemed to gleam through. He's a big man—about a head taller than you—and, oh, how strong he is!"

At this juncture, Captain Fontaine, who had heard the report of the Red Shadow's visit, came hurriedly in. He could not understand her that the Rifis and the French were in active combat. The outlaws had dared now to attack the garrison itself. She felt the tiny revolver in her pocket and was about to seek an even surer safety when the Red Shadow entered the room once more as mysteriously as before. She whipped out the gun and leveled it at him.

"Come a step nearer and I'll fire!" For a moment he said nothing but only looked at her very steadily. When he noticed that she was

For a wonderful moment Margot yielded.

Now I'm going to make you love me!"

Before she could protest she felt his arms around her, felt him crush her body against his own, felt his mouth seek hers. For a wonderful moment she yielded. But the remembrance of her promise to Paul restored her to her senses and she drew herself away from him.

"General Birabeau! Paul! Paul! Come quickly!"

With a nimble leap, the Red Shadow scaled the balcony once more and, blowing her a kiss, was gone.

A moment later she was surrounded by the officers of the garrison. In breathless sentences she told them of the outlaw's visit, of his presumptuous advances. General Birabeau was inclined not to believe her. He thought that the girl's feverish imaginings, inspired perhaps by her successive disappointments in Paul. She found a sympathetic listener when Pierre overed, he whispered softly, "Tut down that gun!"

Quickly she raised it to take aim, but more quickly still he caught her wrist and turned it until the weapon fell to the floor.

And before she could make further protest he had picked her up in his arms. In vain she fought to free herself. In vain she called for help. There was none to aid her, for every soldier in the garrison was fighting grimly to keep off the attacking Rifis.

Outside, his white horse waited for him. In an instant he had thrown the girl across the saddle and had mounted. The pony galloped wildly forward, far, far across the sand into the mystery of the desert night, into the vast unknown where romance and love are found. Margot Bonvalet no longer struggled. She clung to the rider, who held her close while he spurred his horse on to greater speed, and the world she had known was left far behind.

GRAND

Manager Sablosky of the Grand Theatre, announces tonight and Tuesday as the dates for "Kid Gloves" Warner Bros.' latest Vitaphone talking picture, with Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson in featured roles and a cast including Edward Earle, Edna Murphy, Maude Turner Gordon, Richard Cramer, Tommy Dugan and John Davidson. The story is by Fred Myton, the scenario by Robert Lord and the direction by Ray Enright.

"Kid Gloves" is a melodrama of the underworld, with Conrad Nagel in the title role playing the part of a hijacker. He is in the heat of a gun-battle with members of a rival gang when a taxi is driven into the midst of the fray. The driver stops, crouches behind the cab, as one of his two passengers slides out and runs for his life. The interesting part of the case comes from the fact that on the floor of the cab, unconscious, lies a lovely young society girl.

It is when the driver whisks the girl into the nearby apartment of a shop-lifting lady friend, that the story really begins, for soon, over the window sill, "Kid Gloves" leaps, with astonishing agility and proceeds to help to restore the lady to consciousness.

The fiancée of the girl, a wealthy and crooked political leader, has been having the girl shadowed, thinking she is acting strangely, and now the spy, who has seen the auto episode, hastens to the boss with the story. The big boss arrives, and finding Kid Gloves and the lady together, thinks they are lovers and calling a justice, forces them to marry! This is only the beginning.

Vitaphone, in sound, symphonic accompaniment and voices at high points of action—augment the appeal of the picture which is one of the best melodramas of this or any year.

Miss Mary Tamburello wore a beautiful gown of two-tone pink georgette, made with tight bodice, "V" shape neck and sleeveless. The skirt was made bouffant style, with four tiers finished in rose petal points, edged with silver, and a large flower to match was at the waist-line. She wore pink satin slippers and flesh color stockings. Around her neck she wore a string of pink pearls and crystals and around her head, a band of pink mairine trimmed with rhinestones, which was tied in a bow at the left side. She carried an arm bouquet of pink rose buds and delphinium, tied with a large pink bow with streamers.

The dresses of the bridesmaids were made exactly like that of the maid of honor, but were different colors. Miss Julia LaPolla, sister of the bride, wore two-tone honey-dew georgette, with slippers to match and sun-tan stockings and a string of pearls and crystals to match. Miss Veronica Dunn was attired in two-tone orchid and wore orchid slippers, sun-tan stockings and orchid beads and crystals.

Miss Frances Tamburello looked attractive in two-tone shades of green, with slippers to match and flesh color stockings and wore pink pearls and crystals. Miss Sara Callella wore two-tone blue georgette, blue satin slippers, sun-tan stockings and blue pearls and crystals. Bridesmaids wore a band of maline around their heads to match their gowns and they all carried arm bouquets of rosebuds and delphinium, tied with satin bows to match their dresses.

The little girls who carried the bride's veil were daintily dressed in white accordin pleated dresses, made sleeveless, with square neck and were trimmed with a tiny rosette of white satin ribbon on the shoulder. They wore white kid slippers, silk socks and white organdie bonnets trimmed with large rosettes of satin ribbon on either side. Around their necks they wore strings of pearls and on their left wrists, tiny silk handkerchiefs tied with white satin baby ribbon.

The little ring bearer wore a white satin suit, made tuxedo style, black satin slippers and white socks. He carried a white satin heart shape pillow trimmed with rose point lace and a small bouquet of orange blossoms in the center. White satin streamers also hung from each side of the pillow.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in St. Ann's Hall on Logan street, which about five hundred guests attended. Music was furnished by Delia's orchestra. Refreshments were served to the guests. The wedding cake which was beautifully decorated, weighed 140 pounds and as the bride and groom cut the cake, two beautiful white doves flew around the room, finally returning to their cages again.

The bride and groom left late Sunday evening for a wedding trip and they will be gone about ten days. Upon their return, the happy couple will reside with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas LaPolla, of Wood street.

Mrs. Commare wore as a traveling costume, a tan and brown crepe ensemble, with hat, pocketbook, gloves and slippers and stockings to match.

Mrs. Commare was born in Bristol, attended the public schools, and also Rider College in Trenton and holds a position as book-keeper and stenographer with Joseph H. Spencer & Sons, cor. Mill and Radcliffe streets. Mr. Commare was born and raised in Bristol, also attended public schools and at present is employed by Mr. LaPolla. Both Mr. and Mrs. Commare are very well known in Bristol and have a host of friends. They received many beautiful and useful gifts. Guests attending the wedding were from Bristol and vicinity, Philadelphia, Trenton, Red Bank, Elizabeth and Brooklyn.

LIVE where you wor

Many people employed in Bristol are commuting to and from their work each day. This means an unnecessary expense and a waste of time. They must leave home earlier and return later than if they lived in the town where they are employed. They have less time for pleasure and less time to spend with their families than if they resided here.

Why commute ?

Bristol as a place of residence offers every opportunity to be found in a large city. There are paved streets, sanitary sewers, good schools and churches of every denomination; periodic collection of ashes and garbage, police protection and ample space for outdoor recreation.

Housing is adequate

Housing facilities are adequate to meet the needs of all. There are dwellings here which will meet the needs of almost every family. Big six room houses with all modern conveniences including front porches and rear yards. They rent as low as $25 per month, and are comparable in type to those in the larger cities renting for nearly twice the amount.

You're a part of the community

If you live in Bristol you are a part of the community. You are not lost in the crowds of a great city where often times your next door neighbor doesn't know you. Live in Bristol and participate in its affairs and you will find life much more worth the living.

...in a swimmer it's STROKE /

...in a cigarette it's TASTE /

"RIGHT," YOU SAY, "but what is taste?"
Light a Chesterfield, and notice three things: the distinct and pleasing flavor, the fragrance of the smoke, and that certain "something different" which we can only call "character."

Good taste means all three, and all three are blended — and cross-blended, the standard Chesterfield method — into every shred of tobacco. Just one rule governs Chesterfield's making:

"TASTE above everything"
